DONALD EDGAR LUKENS

(OO:WFO)

On 8/9/61, DONALD EDGAR LUKENS, minority clerk, Committee on Rules, (Representative HOWARD W. SMITH (Va.) Chairman) 87th Congress, House of Representatives, Room G-12, U. S. Capitol Building, phone CA 4-3121, extension 4121 or 4122, advised SA [REDACTED] that on April 9, 1961, he and his girl friend, Miss [REDACTED] attended the Royal Thai Reception held at the Army Navy Country Club. LUKENS contacted WFO and requested an interview. During the reception, they spoke with the Military, Air, and Naval Attaches of the Soviet Union. Since LUKENS speaks and understands the Russian language to a fair degree, and showed some interest in discussing the Soviet Union, these Attaches, whose names he could not recall, appeared to be quite interested in him. LUKENS informed them that both he and Miss [REDACTED] are Capitol Hill employees, that he worked for an Ohio Congressman, and that he is an Air Force Reserve Captain.

LUKENS did not think much of these contacts at the time, but two days later on April 11, 1961, [REDACTED] Third Secretary of the Soviet Union, appeared at the House Rules Office, identified himself, and indicated he was the "Russian expert in the field of U.S. internal politics." [REDACTED] did not mention having been referred to LUKENS by anyone, but LUKENS feels the events could be related. [REDACTED] asked a number of questions pertaining to the functioning of [REDACTED] the U.S. Government, various legislative committees, committee meetings, and related topics. LUKENS is of the opinion there are many places on the "Hill" [redacted] could have more easily secured this information.

On June 23, 1961, [redacted] again appeared at the Rules Committee office, and engaged the Majority Clerk, THOMAS A. CARRUTHERS, in conversation. Upon seeing LUKENS, he distinctly addressed LUKENS by name, and then spent about ten minutes inquiring into the possibility of obtaining a written record of the House hearings regarding the "Captive Nations" Resolutions. [redacted] did not appear to be surprised that no record was maintained of a non-controversial subject, and most of the time he was there was devoted to explaining why records of hearings of this type were not maintained by the Rules Committee.

On July 15, 1961, [redacted] appeared at the Committee office, and directly approached LUKENS. Most of his questions on this day were concerning the "Captive Nations" Resolutions, and his primary interest appeared to be whether or not the President of the U.S. could on executive power alone declare a "Captive Nations Week," or whether Congress had to concurrently pass a resolution to that effect. LUKENS advised he was surprised that a "so called expert" on U.S. politics would ask such an elementary question, but informed [redacted] that of course the President could declare such a week. [redacted] then inquired into the 1959 Congress (86th Congress, 1st session) as to whether any such Captive Nations Resolution had been passed. LUKENS searched the Committee files for [redacted] and informed him their files failed to reflect any information on such a resolution. [redacted] appeared disappointed and left after LUKENS informed him that if such a resolution had passed the Congress that year, the House Document Room would have a copy. [redacted] indicated he would check there. LUKENS has not seen him since. LUKENS indicated he has prepared three memoranda for the Rules Committee files showing [redacted] visits, and presented SA [redacted] with copies, which are being retained by WFO.

In February or March 1959, while assigned to OSI at Fukuoka USAF Base at Itazuke, Japan, the Czechoslovakian State Circus visited the city for performances. To welcome them, city officials borrowed LUKENS personally owned convertible for use in a parade. LUKENS cleared this with his superior officer, and later asked some of the Czechs if they would like to visit the air field. About 14 did, taking a tour of the non-restricted section. One of the gymnasts, [redacted] expressed admiration for the U.S. and for jazz music, whereupon LUKENS invited a group of about five Czechs to visit his apartment for a party, which they did. [redacted] asked LUKENS in one letter to send him a book that was not available in Czechoslovakia, "Helicopter Dynamics and Aerodynamics." LUKENS advised this book is not classified and has no military value. He advised he never sent the book but has learned it was published in London in 1959 by Sir Isaac Pitman and Sons, Ltd.

Political Novice Is New Head Of Young GOP

By Anita Ehrman
Staff Reporter

Donald E. (Buz) Lukens, the new head of the National Young Republicans, is a political novice whose relationship with Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) until two and a half years ago was strictly military.

The 32-year-old Lukens was elected chairman of the Young Republicans in a bitter election in San Francisco last Friday night, which got so far out of hand at times that police were needed to maintain order at the convention.

He defeated State Representative Charles McDevitt of Idaho, a veteran in Young Republican politics. Lukens's victory was generally credited to his public endorsement of Goldwater for the Republican presidential nomination.

Unlike McDevitt, Lukens has been in politics less than three years when he gave up his military career to become minority clerk of the House Rules Committee.

He was a captain in the 999th Air Force Squadron, the same one in which Goldwater serves as a brigadier general.

Almost immediately upon his arrival in Washington, the blue-eyed, crew-cut Ohioan overturned the established leadership of the Washington Young Republicans and was elected president.

This year, when he was overwhelmingly re-elected, the opposition charged that he was interested in the Washington office only to further his national ambitions and to help swing the forthcoming San Francisco convention behind Goldwater.

During the Washington campaign, Lukens refused to give public support to Goldwater as his choice for the Republican nomination. It was in San Francisco for the first time that Lukens endorsed Goldwater and proclaimed his political ideology, which includes U. S. withdrawal from the United Nations and abolition of the income tax.

In Washington, Lukens consistently said that his job was to get Republicans elected and not to create friction within the club by stating his ideology.

A firm believer in organization, Lukens, through the enticement of ski trips and big name speakers, built membership in the Washington Young Republicans into a record 1130.

A dynamo of energy, Lukens' relaxation comes in the early hours of the morning, which he spends drinking coffee with friends at all-night Washington restaurants.

He plans to use such tactics as increased participation in radio programs and speaking tours by the main officers to build up the importance and size of the Young Republicans.

Whether his officers will cooperate in Lukens' ambitious plan is open to question. All ran on the opposition slate. They are: co-chairman, Nancy Merrill of Indiana; treasurer, Robert Stone of Alexandria, and secretary, Barbara Kohler of Texas.

Lukens is the first Washingtonian ever to have been elected chairman of the Young Republicans.

Young Republicans Elect Lukens From D.C. as National Chairman

By Richard Bergholz
The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28 — Donald E. (Buz) Lukens of Washington, D. C., an all-out conservative was elected chairman of the Young Republican National Federation here today.

The 32-year-old clerk of the Republican minority on the House Rules Committee turned back the challenge of another avowed conservative, State Representative Charles McDevitt of Idaho, by a vote of 318 to 305.

Robert A. Gaston of La Canada, president of the California Young Republicans, received 49 votes on the first ballot.

All three candidates were rated as enthusiastic boosters of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination.

But Federation rules prohibit the organization or its leaders from making pre-primary endorsements.

It was a heartbreaking defeat for the 31-year-old McDevitt. The Boise attorney came within two votes of victory on the first ballot. His backers said he had some votes in reserve, but before there could be any switches, a second ballot was ordered.

This time, Gaston withdrew and California's 40 votes went to Lukens. He had held them earlier until Gaston entered the race. Gaston had said neither McDevitt nor Lukens was conservative enough for the Californians.

The fight over the national YR leadership for the next two years clearly was the highlight of the closing session of the convention.

Delegates devoted a brief time, however, to consideration and adoption of a relatively short platform, more of a statement of principles, which adhered closely to the conservative dogma without getting specific on anything.

Earlier today the convention refused a motion by Jean McKee, head of the New York delegation, which would have been a slap at the John Birch Society. Her motion deplored, without naming, groups which attempt to use the Communist threat as a way to diminish fundamental human rights.

Lukens, a native of Ohio, lives at 172 North Carolina ave. se. He is serving his second term as president of the District Young Republicans.

He has said that he agrees with the objectives of the amendments to abolish the Federal income tax and believes that the United States should withdraw from the United Nations as it is presently constituted, United Press International reported.
